

The State of New York Water – Clean, Clear and Practically Free!

New York State boasts some of the cleanest and best water in the world, but it's still common to see New Yorkers clutching bottles of water imported from other states and countries. Not only is this practice bad for our environment, but it also puts a strain on our wallets, with bottled water costing up to thousands of times as much as tap.

It's time for us to give up our expensive and irresponsible bottled water habit and restore our faith in our state's bountiful public water supply. New York State's leaders work hard to ensure that our public drinking water is safe and clean, and now it's the public's turn to start being vocal about drinking local!

This handy water bottle gives New Yorkers the ability to take their tap water on the go and show that they truly love New York's clean, delicious water. We at H₂O Conserve encourage other organizations and government institutions throughout New York State to replicate this bottle design in the promotion of our state's public water supplies.

To learn more, visit www.h2oconserve.org, or write to info@h2oconserve.org. H₂O Conserve is a project of Johns Hopkins Center for a Livable Future, Food & Water Watch, GRACE, and the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility.

