

"At a time when the government has all but abdicated responsibility for holding corporations accountable, the work of ICCR is crucial in safeguarding the well being of employees, communities, consumers and the environment."

Rabbi Mordechai Liebling
The Shefa Fund

"The Congregation (of Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange) has been a member of the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility for more than 30 years. ICCR's mission, empowering the poor and disadvantaged through investments, has been a beacon to so many suffering from economic injustices."

Sister Mary Bernadette McNulty, CSJ
Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange

"When it comes to principled shareholder activism, when it comes to an unwavering commitment to the interest of shareholders and our fellow citizens, ICCR quite literally wrote the book on shareholder activism."

Denise Nappier
State Treasurer of Connecticut

ICCR

Inspired by Faith, Committed to Action

ICCR is a coalition of 275 faith-based institutional investors, including national denominations, religious communities, pension funds, endowments and hospital corporations.

We seek to build a more just and sustainable society by integrating social values into corporate and investor decisions.

ICCR changes companies from within by :

- Sponsoring shareholder resolutions.
- Meeting with corporate management.
- Screening investments.
- Speaking out at public hearings and investigations.
- Publishing special reports on key issues.
- Sponsoring public actions such as letter writing campaigns.
- Making investments to promote economic development in low income and minority communities.

Our work sounds complicated, but it's not. We have a passion to help the poor, defend the powerless and safeguard communities and consumers, and we do all of this by using our assets to create corporate compliance on critical issues.

ICCR—we're changing corporations for good.

Advocate for Justice with ICCR

ICCR Advocates share our commitment to today's most critical issues:

- Increasing access to health care and essential medicines.
- Protecting human rights around the world.
- Improving corporate governance and curbing CEO pay.
- Ensuring fair access for all to loans and economic capital.
- Protecting poor communities from industrial waste.
- Halting global warming.
- Opposing the growth of violence in our media and culture.
- Ensuring free access to clean water and unadulterated foods.
- Protecting the rights of workers in the contract supply chain.

ICCR opposes violence on every scale— we advocate ethical criteria for weapons sales contracts and work to halt the marketing of violent video games to children.

We partner with community groups in Louisiana's "Cancer Alley" (the corridor between Baton Rouge and New Orleans) and in the Hunts Point section of the South Bronx in New York to end pollution in communities of color and low-income neighborhoods.

Who is an ICCR Advocate?

An ICCR Advocate:

- Shares ICCR's dedication to economic and social justice.
- Commits to ensuring ethical corporate practices.
- Stays informed about ICCR's ongoing work with corporations.

ICCR works with companies like Disney and Gap to create fair working conditions in the contract supply chain.

ICCR Advocates are individual investors, concerned consumers, alert activists and people of faith who want to build a more just society based on ethical behavior and mutual respect.

Everyone has a stake in today's corporations.
